A traditionary Tale of the early set-thements, written expressly for the Senta Fe Gazette.

BY MARY J. WINDLE. A few hours afterwards, more than ordinary excitement was passing in the mansion. A Masquerade was given to picturesque, Amy had yielded to the wish of her hostess, and quietly submitted to be attired in a robe of India musin, so transparent in its texture as to look like ganze. Her golden hair received a new grace from the single white camilla, with its drooping bud, which gleame I like a star amid those tresses so purely, so feelily beautiful, that it seemof a fit emblem of her it adorned. Cara appeared a heroin of queenly beauty; the braids and the folds of her new lace robe failing round her like a Grecian statue. All incriment ceased as they entered, From Beatty's Mills, down the South and marmurs of undisguised admiration From Thursville, via Enterprise, Da-Fork of Fishing Creek, and down Indi-vis' Settlement, Youngsville, and Chan-an Creek, to Replay's, in the county of dier's Valley, to Sugar Grove, in Wass Teler. a gentleman of elegant figure pressed forward and saluted her with masked "cu-
